Aleksandra Przegalinska Tamilla Triantoro Tuvana Rua

Hamden: Quinnipiac University's M&T Bank Center for Women and Business will host the panel discussion, "The Future of Work and AI," from 12:30-1:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 26.

The event, which is free and open to the public, will take place in the Mount Carmel Auditorium, 275 Mount Carmel Ave.

The fireside chat will feature Aleksandra Przegalinska, vice-rector for Innovation and AI at Kozminski University in Poland and a senior research associate at Harvard Law School's Center for Labor and a Just Economy, and Tamilla Triantoro, associate professor of business analytics and information systems at Quinnipiac and a recognized global voice on human–AI collaboration.

"As AI becomes part of everyday work, it is important to have thoughtful conversations about how humans and intelligent systems collaborate," Triantoro said. "This event brings together research, experience and practical insight to help students and professionals understand where work is heading."

Przegalinska and Triantoro co-authored the book "Converging Minds," which explores how people and intelligent systems work together in creative and organizational settings. Their conversation will examine how artificial intelligence is reshaping work, leadership and opportunity across industries.

Moderated by Tuvana Rua, associate professor of management and director of the M&T Bank Center for Women & Business at Quinnipiac, the discussion will also focus on how individuals and organizations are integrating AI into daily work, how power dynamics and opportunities are shifting, and what students and professionals can do to prepare for AI-driven workplaces. Plaques to be Provided Identifying North Haven's Historic Homes

The North Haven Historical Society & Museums is excited to announce that it will be providing plaques to historic homeowners.

Signage identifying historic homes is often seen in communities that value their historic resources. These plaques are a public "thank you" to the owners for maintaining these properties. They also showcase the historical provenance of these homes. The Historical Society believes that providing these plaques, free of charge to the homeowners, is one way they can promote a greater knowledge and appreciation of local history.

The North Haven Historical Society & Museums is now in the process of identifying homes/properties of historic interest. The Historical Society is most interested in suggestions from residents.

Individuals who believe their homes/properties should be so identified please contact us at (203) 239-7722 or email us at nhhistsoc@gmail.com.

If you know of a property in your neighborhood that you believe should be identified, please reach out to us, as well. Once the society has finalized the first group of properties to be acknowledged, owners of those homes will be contacted by mail. Participation is voluntary, and property owners will be fully informed of the history of their property, the size and appearance of the plaque, and placement details.

Eventually the Society would like to provide markers for all its historic properties; we hope you can help us with this project!
