Daytime Gardeners Award Scholarship To Lily Coish

North Haven: The Daytime Gardeners selected Lily Coish as the 2026 winner of their $500 Merit Scholarship Award. The scholarship committee presented Lily with the check at the North Haven Library Reading Garden which is one of the town gardens designed and maintained by the club. Lily is completing her junior year at Queen's University, Ontario, Canada, in Environmental Studies. She is very interested in learning more about how environmental issues impact people. Lily would like to work on aspects of environmental policy that will improve the lives of the people in our community.

Lily has received approval for her honors thesis project in her senior year. She will complete a year-long project under the supervision of a faculty member in the School of Environmental Studies, which will include a research proposal, a seminar presentation, and a final thesis with an oral defense. Her research will focus on sustainable food systems, particularly at the local level, with the goal of exploring how communities can strengthen and localize their food sources, including food chains that begin with local growers and producers. After completing the honors thesis project, her plan is to pursue a master's program before a career in environmental policy.

Be Confident

You don't need fame or fortune to be considered a grounded, self-made or respected person. What you do need is a positive mindset that will define your ability to be a person of value. Along your journey, make sure that you treat everyone with respect and kindness. In return, you will be rewarded with the same.

Don't dwell on the past because it is something we can't change. Instead, concentrate on the present, which will define your character and represent your epitaph. Be as it may, always strive to be a person of worth in anything you say or do. Only then will people respect you for what you are.

Along with a positive attitude, it is plausible that you will reach your goals but don't take things for granted. Success very seldom comes without sacrifices.

In the end, a righteous person will have the satisfaction of knowing they have done their best.
