BULLETIN

This Day in Yale History, 2016

October 24, 2016 / Student Teams Up with Two-Star Michelin Chef for Exclusive Dining Experience

Abdel Morsy '17 partnered with Shin Takagi, head chef of the two-star Michelin restaurant Zeniya in Kanazawa, Japan, to host an eight-course Japanese dinner for 12 guests in New Haven. The event celebrated Morsy's collaboration with Takagi and marked the one year anniversary of Stickershop, Morsy's art-focused dinner series featuring musicians, chefs and designers.

Morsy first met Takagi while working at Zeniya the previous summer and invited him to co-host the event, where dishes ranged from deep-fried sesame tofu to raw seafood and handmade soy ice cream. Yale musicians performed live, and attendees received custom-designed stickers for the occasion. One guest described the night as "hands-down amazing," blending culinary artistry with New Haven's creative community.

HANNAH ROLLER / CONTRIBUTING PHOTOGRAPHER

Behind the Headline

By Elijah Hurewitz-Ravitch

I met Steve Orosco for lunch on a sunny afternoon at P&M Deli, where he ordered a chicken pesto sandwich and mentioned to me that he was an intermittent fasting adherent. Although we were in East Rock, which Orosco called "enemy territory," several people approached him to offer words of support. Eventually, after Orosco and I had discussed MMA, Black conservatism, and segregation in New Haven — among many other topics — we drove to Westville Manor, a dilapidated public housing development on the northwest edge of the Elm City. As Orosco walked its grounds with Perry Flowers, the Republican candidate for Ward 30 alder, curious heads popped out of concrete homes to say hello. But Orosco was on a tight schedule: he had to be at the Milford gym he co-owns to train a twelve-year-old future fighter. Orosco is fond of saying that getting into the cage is "human chess" — not so different, perhaps, from running a city.

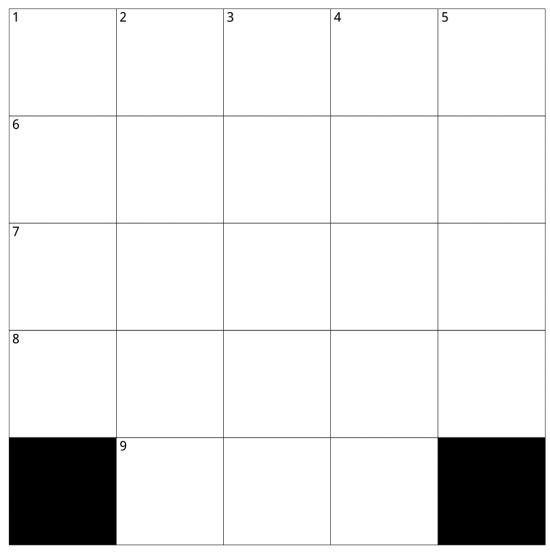

Read "GOP fighter, mayoral underdog" on PAGE 1.

Puzzles

Puzzle by Ariana Borut '27

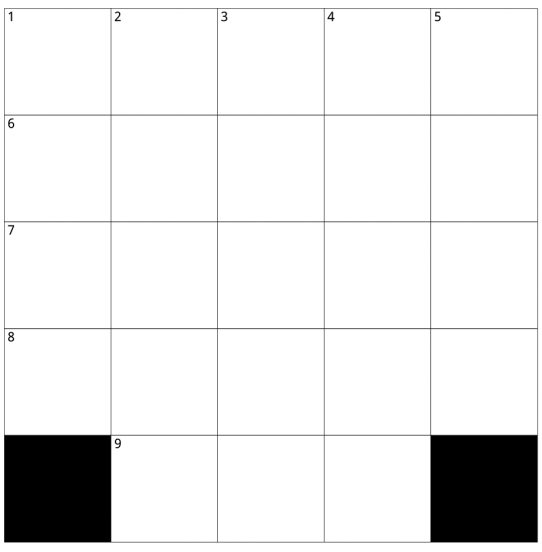

ACROSS
1 Salesperson's spiel
6 Cherish
7 Silky fabric
8 Fancy pillow covers
9 Fútbol cheer

DOWN
1 ___/fail class
2 Wyoming neighbor
3 Receipt figure
4 True ___ (podcast genre)
5 Coop residents

ACROSS
1 Mix to a froth
6 "The White Lotus" star ___ Lou Wood
7 Romantic connection
8 Divide into two
9 The "A" of I.P.A.

DOWN
1 Clean with soap and water
2 Patient privacy law, for short
3 "___ ears!" ("Listening!")
4 Start of a volleyball point
5 TV host Palmer

HANNAH LIU / CONTRIBUTING ILLUSTRATOR

