BULLETIN

This Day in Yale History, 1988

March 3, 1988 / Students blast CIA for recruitment

By Rob Fuentes

Approximately twenty-five students gathered early yesterday afternoon in front of University Career Service to protest CIA on-campus recruitment. The agency's district officers conducted job interviews as the students carried placards denouncing "illegal activities" and chanted "stop the terror, stop the lies, we don't want no goddamn spies."

"We hope we can influence students towards being a little less receptive towards the CIA," said Jennifer Middleton '88, a member of the Democratic Socialists of America. "And we're letting the CIA know that all of Yale is not happy with Yale's substantial historical involvement with the CIA.

A similar protest three years ago led to the arrest of six students when students stormed the CIA interviewing room.

Behind the Headline

By Jaeha Jang

Throughout last week, a plethora of sources shared with me individual stories of lecturers' contracts not being renewed, and these decisions being attributed to Yale's budget cuts.

Recognizing a trend across departments, I interviewed a German professor in his office, read through a petition signed by more than 120 people and called various students about the now-departing professors' impact on their learning. What emerged was a story not only of these recent non-renewals but also of the inherent precarity of these short-term contracts.

Read "Instructors let go as cuts force 'trade-offs'" on page 1.

University enacts new tuition policy

Rollin Riggs

TUITION DUE ON TIME OR ELSE Bursar Francis Nicholl said. Late payers will not be allowed to register next fall.

Puzzles

Puzzle by Ariana Borut '27

ACROSS
1 Margarita rim garnish
5 Sparkly crown
7 Dog collar attachment
8 Lace up again
9 Call off

DOWN
1 Recipe directive
2 Politician's helper
3 Milky matcha or coffee variety
4 Work out
6 Like fine wine

